What aspects of the course contributed most to your learning? Please be as specific as possible.

I really liked listening to the discussions and doing the readings.

The weekly discussion posts were great. They didn't take a whole lot of time, but getting to intellectually challenge other students and get intellectually challenged by them was great. It helped me critically evaluate my own positions.

The in class discussions let me hear a lot of new ideas.

The readings and the zoom meetings

Reading!!

The critiques and the quizzes were a big part of my understanding of this class. I'll be honest and say I never paid attention in class but that's my own fault. Mr. Shields is a great teacher. It's my own fault I did not pay more attention.

The fact that you have to think outside the box of a box of another box

I received help when struggling with the class.

The readings and explanations by professor shields

His course work and lectures helped a lot to better understand the course.

The class was centered around reading then having in class socratic seminars in tandem with a slide show that aids in leading discussion.

What suggestions do you have to improve this class?

Since it was hard to really control the work effort in zoom I think you should've kept the participation points so people would be more likely to talk and interact but overall a great class.

N/A

I would say it would be better to have more in-class discussions, but I think that is just hard to do with it being online. Also, a lot of people don't like sharing their opinions.

Require more zoom participation

I do not have any. Mr. Shields is a great teacher, even if I did not do my part to engage in his class.

This class was hard for me to understand. I think that fewer lectures and more activities would be helpful.

To make answers negotiable

None

More class engagement, such as cold call

n/a

Not much. If there was one thing I think that one forum post a week instead of one for two weeks might be helpful but, I am not positive.
